

Why should you undergo regular screening for stomach cancer?

Most early-stage stomach cancer patients have no symptoms.

60%

of stomach cancer patients do not survive more than 5 years because of late diagnosis.†

Screening can detect stomach cancer early. Stomach cancer is curable if detected early.

How do you know if you are at risk for stomach cancer?

GASTROClear™ aids in the early detection of stomach cancer, even before symptoms appear.

GASTROClear™

Your are at risk if you are above 40 years old and have any of the following risk factors:

- 1 Family history of stomach cancer.
- 2 Medical history of gastritis and other stomach illnesses.
- 3 History of Helicobacter pylori (H. pylori) infection.
- 4 Smoking
Obesity.
Alcohol consumption.
High intake of salted, smoked, and preserved foods.
Low intake of fruits and vegetables.

Powered by Mirxes' technology, GASTROClear™ is a blood test that detects a molecular signature associated with stomach cancer.

The test reports a risk score which will indicate if you are at Low Risk, Intermediate Risk, or High Risk of having stomach cancer.

Your doctor will evaluate the GASTROClear report together with clinical findings, and determine if further medical evaluation, such as a gastroscopy, is advisable.

World's first molecular blood test for detection of gastric cancer to be used in conjunction with gastroscopy.
